

Priority Area I - Health

The Cambodian-German Social Health Protection Programme supports the Royal Government of Cambodia to ensure that poor and vulnerable Cambodians are healthier and face less of a financial burden when using quality health care services. Our interventions focus on health system strengthening and social protection as well as on reproductive, maternal, new-born and child health. We also work for the integration of disabled people in order to support the Kingdom in all health care areas.

Priority Area II – Rural Development

Germany's support in rural development is focused on strengthening rural-urban linkages for the sustainable development of local economies. We invest in social and economic infrastructures; supporting small farmers in better cultivation of farmland and marketing of their production; and developing capacities of, and providing funding to, rural enterprises and public and private sector institutions.

This integrated approach leads to higher investment and growth rates; especially in agriculture. Along with our support of fair and transparent industrial employment opportunities in nearby urban centres, we are able to generate rural employment and higher household income
